

Deepak is Executive Vice President, Strategy and Chief Risk Officer at Infosys. His responsibilities include longer-term strategic planning for the organization and the management of cross functional strategic initiatives. As the Chief Risk Officer, he is responsible for the company's risk management function, identifying and assessing the risks to the successful execution of the company's strategies and operations. He oversees the Infosys Innovation Fund that invests in the start-up ecosystem globally. He is a member of the board of Infosys' software subsidiaries across the world. In a career spanning 29 years, he has played various roles, including software engineering, business development, M&A, strategy and risk management. He is currently based at the Infosys headquarters in Bangalore, India.