

Dr. Alexander Liu is Head of Additive Manufacturing Programs, Asia region at ASTM International responsible for ASTM AM center of excellence (CoE) and various AM programs Asia. He is based in Singapore and works closely with various industries and government agencies, helping them to utilize standards and adopt AM. He has a B.Eng in Mechatronics and Robotics Automation and a PhD in Mechanical Engineering. With more than 14 years of experience on AM processes and materials, he received a total of 10 awards and patents in the area of additive manufacturing. He is active within the AM community and continues to review and publish journals as well as making technical and business presentations around Asia.