

Hemal has been with Dell since 2008, currently serving as SVP of the newly formed Data Management Incubation product group. He also currently serves as Regional CIO for the Asia-Pacific (APJC region) Previous to this, he has led many functions within the global IT team. Along with being the Regional CIO, most recently he ran the Data organization which owned and drove the strategy for Data including Security, Privacy, Governance, Master Data as well as Data Platform initiatives. He also ran the Marketing IT team delivering the customer enablement platform.

He has led multiple IT Functions & teams supporting stakeholders across Sales, Marketing, Services, Global Operations, Supply chain, Online and Finance. He also led key IT strategy and enterprise architecture projects including Digital Transformation, Mergers & Acquisitions.

Before joining Dell, Hemal was with KPMG/BearingPoint Inc as a Senior Manager for the Customer Value Management practice.

He has a master's degree in computer science from the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign and a bachelor's degree in computer engineering from VJT, India. He also has taken leadership courses at Yale University School of Management.

Hemal currently lives in Bangalore India with his wife and has two teenagers.